Library of the Public Archives of Canada

The images appearing here are the best quality possible considering the condition and legibility of the original copy and in keeping with the filming contract specifications.

Original copies in printed paper covers are filmed beginning with the front cover and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression, or the back cover when appropriate. All other original copies are filmed beginning on the first page with a printed or illustrated impression, and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression.

The last recorded frame on each microfiche shall contain the symbol → (meaning "CONTINUED"), or the symbol ▼ (meaning "END"), whichever applies.

Maps, plates, charts, etc., may be filmed at different reduction ratios. Those too large to be entirely included in one exposure are filmed beginning in the upper left hand corner, left to right and top to bottom, as many frames as required. The following diagrams illustrate the method:

L'exemplaire filmé fut reproduit grâce à la générosité de:

La bibliothèque des Archives publiques du Canada

Les images suivantes ont été reproduites avec le plus grand soin, compte tenu de la condition et de la netteté de l'exemplaire filmé, et en conformité avec les conditions du contrat de filmage.

Les exemplaires originaux dont la couverture en papier est imprimée sont filmés en commençant par le premier plat et en terminant soit par la dernière page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration, soit par le second plat, selon le cas. Tous les autres exemplaires originaux sont filmés en commençant par la première page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration et en terminant par la dernière page qui comporte une telle empreinte.

Un des symboles suivants apparaîtra sur la dernière image de chaque microfiche, selon le cas: le symbole → signifie "A SUIVRE", le symbole ▼ signifie "FIN".

Les cartes, planches, tableaux, etc., peuvent être filmés à des taux de réduction différents.
Lorsque le document est trop grand pour être reproduit en un seul cliché, il est filmé à partir de l'angle supérieur gauche, de gauche à droite, et de haut en bas, en pronant le nombre d'images nécessaire. Les diagrammes suivants illustrent la méthode.

Ingely your Excellency partakes in the universal Joy, occasioned by the late happy Success with which it has pleased Heaven to crown his Majesty's Arms in North-America, particularly in the Reduction of the Capital of Canada. — An ardent Zeal for the Honour and Interest of the Best of Kings; a thorough rough Sense of the Importance of the American Service to the Glory of His Reign, and the Prosperity of His whole Dominion; and a generous Concern for the Sasety and Happiness of the People over whom you preside, are Principles that must render you peculiarly interested in this great Event, as they have evidently formed the Spirit of your Administration.

You have had the Joy to see your incessant Cares and Endeavours for the interior Welfare of your Province, and the Security of its exposed Territories, happily succeeded. A respectable Fortress, constructed under your Excellency's Eye, and well garrisoned, has given His Majesty the firm Possession of the important

You have also found the great and fingular Services to His Majefty's general Cause, proposed by your Excellency, and from which your Attention has never been diverted, adopted by the other Branches of the Legislature with a Resolution and Zeal answerable to the Importance of the Occasion, and to the Warmth of your own Wishes and Recommendations. Tell, it had no to consider, the Power

--- Thy Saints shall bless Thee: they shall speak of the Glory of thy Kingdom, and talk of thy Power: to make known to the Sons of Men his mighty Acts.--

HE common and ordinary Effects which we behold in the World around us, demonstrate the Being and universal Providence of God. But there are some special Dispensations, and great Events, which have a natural Tendency, and doubtless were defign'd fign'd to awaken in us a more than common Sense of his supreme uncontrolable Dominion, our Dependance upon him, and our Obligations to him; and of which we ought to make this religious Improvement. For it must be the Height of Impiety upon such Occasions, "not to regard the Work of the Lord and the Operation of his Hand,"

WITHOUT entring upon a particular Explanation of the feveral Parts of the Text, it leads us to confider, the Power and Dominion of God, forme of his mighty Acts in Favour of the Church in general, and of our Nation and Land in particular; especially that Instance of his Power and Grace in which we are now rejoicing, and the religious Acknowledgements and Praises which all this demands from us

The Pener of God is absolute and unlimited extending to every Thing possible to every Thing that does not imply Weakness or Imperfection in the Agent.

Agent. He is the one self-existent Being, from whom all other Beings, and all the Powers which they possess are derived; and upon whose Influence they altogether depend for the Exertion of these Powers. Nothing therefore can oppose the Execution of his Deligns; no Being can make anyManner of Resistance to the Operations of his Hand. The combined Force of all created Nature when compar'd to his Energy, "is as Nothing, and less than Nothing and Vanity."

The unlimited Power of God is essential to his Being, and like himself is present in every Place; He can then as easily do all Things, as any Thing; as easily sustain the Universe, and govern all the Parts of it according to his sovereign Pleasure, as He can support and direct any single Atom of Matter. "Hast thou not known, hast thou not heard, as the Prophet Isaiab sublimely speaks upon this Argument, that the everlasting God, the Lord, the Creator of the Ends of the Earth, fainteth not neither is weary"!

THERE was a Time, so to speak, when God was alone, and nothing existed but himself; there was then no Power but his own; and whateverPower has existed since, was communicated by him, and so must forever be absolutely dependant upon him: and could we suppose any Creature capable of resisting in the least Degree the Execution of his Purposes; (which indeed is absurd) He could as easily withdraw that Power by annihilating the Creature, as he at first gave it.

Name of Philosophy was the Notion of the Epicureans, who fancied it would greatly interrupt the Tranquility and Happiness of the Deity to have the Government of the World in his own Hands; and accordingly provided him a calm Retreat far above this busy Scene, where none of the Affairs of it might weary or perplex him. In this Manner they consulted the Ease of their Gods at the Expence of their Honor; and under the Notion of representing them as perfectly happy, destroyed the Foundation of religious Worship. Was God indeed confined to any particular Place, or his Power bounded, as they absurdly imagined, they might have done this with more Appearance of Truth; but since the Heavin of Heavens cannot contain him, and he can be excluded from no Part of the Universe, and since wherever he is, that Power that created the World, always accompanies him, all Things must not only be possible but equally easy to him.

Angle as was I have appose a long

God stands at the Head of his own vast Creation; the countless Ranks of Creatures that croud the Universe, compose his Host and a tend his Orders;——In him they live and move, and have their Being.—Things appear or disappear at his Word, his Nod, his Smiles or his Frowns. It is thus that the facred Scriptures represent to us the irresistable Energy of the divine Will. "Fy the Word of the Lord were the Heavens made, and all the Hosts of them by the Breath of his Mouth Mouth; He spake and it was done; He commanded and they stood fast. He looketh on the Earth and it trembleth; He uttereth his Voice and it melteth!"

is to size it whoiry 4 15

And if we would warm and fill our Minds with the most lively and striking Descriptions of God's Power and Dominion, we shall find them in the inspired Writings. "Before the Day was I am he; I will work and who shall let it! I form the Light and I create Darkness; I make Peace and I create Evil, I the Lord do all these Things. Who hath directed the Spirit of the Lord, or being his Counfellor hath taught him! Behold the Nations are as a Drop of a Bucket, and are counted as the small Dust of the Balance. When He giveth Quietness who then can make Trouble? or when He hideth his Face who then can behold him; whether it be done against a Nation or a Man only! The Lord hath prepared his Throne in the Heavens and his Kingdom ruleth over all."

This Power in all it's Operations, has ever been guided and adorned with a Perfection of Wisdom, Righteousness and Goodness, becoming the Proprietor and Lord of all. Nor can we forget how often it has been displayed in Defence of the Church, reduced to the extremest Danger, and ready to expire under the Hand of it's potent Oppressors. How glorious did it appear when it led the Children of Israel from their Bondage in Egypt? When it visited Pharaoh and his Servants with astonishing Plagues; and at last overwhelmed them in a common Destruction? When it led the chosen People. thro' the Sea? When it expelled the Cananites before them, and planted them in the promis'd Land? This levell'd the Walls of Jericho: this discomfited the Host of Midian: this arrested the Sun in his Course to favour Joshua in the purfuit of his Enemies; while more were slain by the Hail from Heaven, than by the Sword of Israel: this precipitated the haughty Monarch of Babylon, the Oppressor of God's People from his exalted Throne, Nor has the Arm of God been employed and made bare only for the Defence of the Church of Ifrael.

Power which gave such strong and convincing Attestations to the Divinity of the Gospel at it's first Promulgation, has never wholly deserted the Christian Church. Therefore like the Ark by which it was prefigured, it has survived all the Storms that have beat upon it, and been borne above a Deluge of Adversity: therefore like the Bush that burned but was not consumed, it has sustained, it has even increased in the Fire of Persecution.

And if we consult the History of later Times, shall we find any Reason to complain that the Lord's Hand has been shortned that it could not save? Shall we not on the contrary behold the Providence of God employed, tho' not in a miraculous, yet in a very distinguished Manner, in De-

WHAT but the divine Arm has fupported and defended the Protestant Religion, so wonderful in it's Rise, so fmall and tender in it's Infancy, and fo constantly opposed and persecuted by a formidable Power under the Direction of the most refined and exqu. fite Policy !--- Happily for our Fathers, and for us, the reformed Religion, founded upon free Inquiry and the Right of private Judgment, and so friendly to the Enlargement of Knowledge, and to that Liberty which never can be too dearly purchased, was early received and cherished in Great-Britain. And how remarkably has the same good Providence which first first transplanted this Religion into that favoured Island, shielded and preserved it, together with those invaluable Rights andPriviledges which are closely interwoven with it, when they have been threatned with an utter Extirpation by foreign and domestic Foes?---There was once a Time when even a British Monarch would have " made himself a Captain to lead us back to the Bondage of Egypt": but when all that was dear to us was brought to the extremest Danger, it pleased the sovereign Power that disposes human Affairs, to effect an happy and furprizing Revolution .-- An Æra that will ever be remembered with Gratitude to Almighty God by those who have a just Value for the British Constitution, and that full Liberty, with which it bleffes those who enjoy it 十,

We may express, bleffed be God in the most open Manner, the warmest Attachment to true Liberty, under the Government of a Prince who has ever defended and cherished it; who despises the forced Submission of Slaves; who has long since founded his Empire in the Hearts of his Subjects; and who esteems it his peculiar Glory to reign over a free, and therefore a great Nation. And the more warmly we are attached to those priviledges which are the Birth-right of British Subjects, the more sensible shall we be of our Obligations to the Providence of God, for establishing the Succession to the British Crown in the Protestant Illustrious House of Hanover, and so constantly defeating all the wicked and unnatural Designs that have been formed against it.

WITH Joy the British Nation beholds a bright Pledge of it's future Happiness, in the Royal Progeny of our gracious King, particularly in the Heir Apparent now arrived at full Age. We also in these Western Extremities of his Dominion, partake : 11:3.0

God, "who changes the Times and the Seasons," has been pleased not long since to permit a surprizing Revolution to take Place in the Political System of Europe. The House of Austria, so much indebted to the British Nation, and that had so long opposed the formidable Power of France, has lately united itself with it. In this strange and alarming Conjuncture, the Safety of Britain, of the Protestant Interest, and the Liberties of Europe, are closely connected with the Success of our Sovereign's Illustrious Ally, the King of Prussia.

HERE then a new and aftonishing Series of divine Dispensations opens to our View. What, but the Favour of Heaven has hitherto supported that truly great, but much endangered Monarch! Who has not been amazed to see Prussa, that a few Years ago made so comparatively small a Figure among the Nations, now bearing

WHILE our Eyes are turned towards Germany, we cannot but take particular Notice of the fignal Salvation which God has been pleased to afford to his Majesty's Dominions in that Empire. Our old and enraged Enemy attacked Hanover, to avenge itself on Britain. But this Measure, as much as they were ready to promise themselves from it, has hitherto proved the Means of increasing their Defeats and Difgraces. Twice have His Majesty's Troops, with those of His Allies, under the Conduct of the victorious Ferdinand. rescued this devoted Country from the cruel Power of France. Twice has that mighty Army, the Pride and Strength of this aspiring and oppressive Monarchy, been vanquished and broken by much inferior Numbers.

No one can be insensible of the Importance of these Successes to the Protestant Interest in general, and particularly to the British ne

Who of us did not feel for our gracious Sovereign, and his German Subjects, while they suffered so much, and were in Danger of a repeated and still greater Desolation *! We cannot therefore but rejoice at their Deliverance, and the Abasement of that Power, which has so long sought the Destruction of Britain.—The Figure and Influence of France must be greatly diminished by these Deseats; and it has lost the Prospect of those Advantages with which it hoped to negotiate.

I forbear to mention the valuable Acquisitions with which our Arms have been blest, in Africa, and the West-Indies. Nor shall I attempt to reckon up our Naval Conquests, which have so much lessened the

What Hanover would have suffered from the French, had their Arms prevailed this Year, is manifested to the World from a Letter of the Marshal Duc de Bellsiste, Master of the Department of War, to Marshal Contades, Commander of the Army, printed in the London Gazette, of August 18, in which it is advised, after penetrating the Country, not only to draw large Contributions of Money, and all kinds of Subsistence for the Army, but also to make a down-right Desart before their Quarters, leaving only a bare Subsistence for the Troops in their suture Route.

Marine Power of the Enemy, and augmented our own: tho' that important one § of which we have lately received the News, deserves to be particularly mentioned, as it makes a large Accession to our present Joy. These Conquests, great as they have been, are owing to the Favour of that Being who is the sole Monarch of the Ocean, where even the British Navy cannot triumph, without the Aid of His Providence.

IF we turn our Eyes to this dear Land of our Nativity, and confider it's Circumstances from the Beginning to this happy Day, how many affecting Interpositions of Heaven in our Favour do we behold!—Our Progenitors, smitten with a Love of Liberty, and possessed with an uncommon Reverence to the Dictates of Conscience, transplanted themselves into the Wilds of America. STILL have our Arms, through the Favour of Heaven, continued to advance. What a Variety of successful Services, and important Acquisitions, croud and adorn this distinguished Year! Niagara, Carrilon, the formidable Lines where we suffered so severe a Repulse the last Campaign, and Fort Frederic, have added fresh Laurells to our victorious Leader, and his brave Army....

Thus have we glanced at some of the Dispensations of Heaven in Favour of the Church in general, the Protestant Interest, and the British Nation and it's Dependencies, which demand our religious Attention, and grateful Acknowledgments. And how deep is the Respect which we owe to that Being, who holds the Helm of the World in his Hand, and guides it through all Changes and Revolutions, who presides over all our personal and public public Affairs; who ruleth in the Kingdoms and States of Men; appointing their Date; prescribing their Bounds; determining their relative Strength; and difpenfing to them that Measure of Profperity, or Advertity, which he pleases! How well does it become us to be sensible of our Dependance upon him for every future public Favour; and of ourObligations to him for every Degree of public Happiness which we have received! He expects that we pierce through the Veil of outward Appearances, and fecond Causes, and discern his Almighty Hand guiding the Movements of all Nature, and producing the Success in which we reioice! in any ordina and a land to receive and indicated in Gon's Providence superintends and determines the doubtful Events of War.

The Means of Victory, and the Blessing which renders these Means effectual, are both derived from him. That great Distinction which appears among Men with Respect to martial Accomplishments, and the different Advantages for War, which different different Nations possess, are ultimately to be resolved into the divine Will. From whom does the Warrior derive his Conduct and Prowess, his Abilities and Success, but from Him, "Who formeth the Spirit of Man within him";——from Him, who raised up Moses to lead Israel from their Bondage in Egypt, and Joshua to conduct them into Canaan; who called David from the Tent of a Shepherd to encounter the Pride of Philistia, and the Terror of Israel, and afterwards made him so illustrious a Commander and Prince.

Accordingly this devout, tho' great and fuccessful Warrior, often ascribes to God his military Accomplishments, and the Success with which they were adorned, and rendered so conspicuous. "It is God that girdeth me with Strength, and maketh my Way perfect. He teacheth my Hands to War, so that a Bow of Steel is broken by my Arms. By Thee have I run through a Troop, and by my God have I leaped over a Wall. Thou hast given me the Shield of thy Salvation; thy right right Hand hath holden me up, and thy Gentleness hath made me great. The Lord liveth, and blessed be my Rock, and let the God of my Salvation be exalted."

THE successful Commander, like the Perfian Prince of old, is conducted by the powerful, though invisible Hand of the Lord of Hosts! "He goes before him, and makes the crooked Places strait, and the rough Places smooth: He cuts in sunder the Gates of Brass, and breaks in Pieces the Bars of Iron; and gives him the Treasures of Darkness, and hidden Treasures of secret Places!"

and inecessful Warriot, of God does not in these Days give us Success by controusing the Laws of Nature, and reversing the common Course of Causes and Effects. But in the Estimation of sound Reason his Agency is as really concerned, though not so apparently, in what is called common Success, as in those prosperous Events that have been attended with miraculous Circumstances. There are a thousand Contingencies upon which the Health

Health and Supply of Armies depend, a thousand Circumstances that influence their Counsels, exalt or depress their Courage, and determine their Operations and Success, which no human Sagacity can foresee, no human Power can control, but which fall within the Providence of that Being, by whom the "very Hairs of our Head are all numbered."

IT was therefore a foolish as well as impious Saying, faid to be uttered by a French Commander, that " Providence always favours an hundred Thousand Men": meaning, that notwithstanding the Influence of divine Providence, the strongest Army might be sure of Success. God frequently reminds Men of his own Superintendency over these great Affairs, by disappointing the most rational Expectations, or by granting Success much beyond our Hopes. When opposite Armies are contending in the Field, "He who fitteth upon the Circle of the Earth" holds the Scales in which they are weighed, and points

To Him then let us offer up our united and thankful Acknowledgments for that great and happy Event that has occasioned this Day's Gladness. It is for this, that we are now assembled in the House of God, under the Countenance and at the Call of Civil Authority. "O come then, let us worship and bow down, let us kneel before the Lord our Maker: Let us enter into his Gates with Thanksgiving, and into his Courts with Praise: let us be thankful unto Him, and bless His Name: for the Lord is great, and greatly to be praised.

I find myself at a Loss for Words upon this memorable Occasion. I know not how to express the Importance of that Success with which it has pleased God to bless His Majesty's Arms: and yet I feel it; and so I doubt not does every one in this Assembly. Joy sparkles in everyEye: Triumph DEY

STRUCK with this News, we were like the Disciples who "believed not for Joy", and were ready to adopt the Language of the antient redeemed Church; "When the Lord turned again the Captivity of Zion, we were like them that dream at then was our Mouth filled with Laughter, and our Tongue with Singing: then said they among the Heathen the Lord hath done

Let us then confectate the gladness of our Hearts to God; and return to him in devout Praises, and Thanksgivings, that full Joy which He has bestowed upon us, remembering that we triumph in his Power and not in our own. Give unto the Lord, O ye Kindreds of the People, give unto the Lord Glory and Strength; give unto the Lord the Glory due unto his Name: for his right Hand, and his holy Arin hath gotten the Victory.

But God, we know, governs the World in a mediate Way. His Providence does not destroy or supersede the free Actions of Men: and in accomplishing his own great Designs, he employs those great Qualities with which he has inspired some of the human Race. Religion therefore is very far from forbidding us to shew a subordinate Regard to those, whose faithful Services have been crowned with this glorious Nor will the unavoidable Sensations of our own Bosoms allow us, to forbear testifying our Gratitude and Esteem for those, whose Toils and Dangers have largely contributed to our Security and Happiness. Even the inspired Song of Deborah, omits not to give particular Honors to those brave Men, who by the Blessing of Heaven, obtained the Victory which it celebrates.

How then can we be filent in the Praises of that General, and that Army, who, under God, have given us this Day's Triumph, and who will henceforth be ranked among those distinguished Leaders, and those firm and immoveable Battalions, which Providence employs to determine the Fate of Kingdoms and Provinces."

Judges in these Matters, than I pretend to be, has afforded the brightest Proofs of all military Accomplishments. No Difficulty has arisen in this arduous Service, superior to the Skill of the Leader; nor any Danger, great enough to quell the Resolution and Ardor of the Troops; for they had One at their Head, who knew how to infuse something of his own Spirit into an Army, and was capable of inspiring Intrepidity into more timerous Breasts than those of British Soldiers; like the great Hannibal, who only demanded Men, and undertook himself to make them brave.

Courage is the most brilliant Quality to common Eyes, as it is truly the Basis of a Soldier. But had this necessary Quality been found alone at the Head of our small Army, it never could have undertaken and effected such various Services, for which it was so often divided, without giving some fatal Advantage to a numerous and watchful Foe.

HERE then that Conduct shone, which strikes with Admiration the Judicious; and marks the great Captain.——A Sagacity and Prudence, sufficiently animated, but not disturbed or over-borne, by that martial Ardor, so natural to the Breast of Heroes.

As soon as General Wolfe had disembarqued his Army, "He gained upon the Enemy even without a Battle, and never for a Moment quitted his Superiority."——At length, by a Motion, prudent as it was bold, meritorious as it was successful, He drew the French much superior in Numbers, from their inaccessible Intrenchments, and obtained that great and decifive Victory, which was soon followed with the Surrender of Quebec.

WHEN we consider the Situation of his Service, in the Heart of Canada; the comparative Smallness of his Force, and the Manner in which he employed it, must we not acknowledge, that he had made a successful and shining Campaign, even before the Thirteenth of September? But what an Accession of Glory to himfelf, of Service to his Prince, and Felicity to his Country, did that Day afford!——That memorable Day, not only exhibited the Superiority of British Courage, but shewed a young British Commander, who had never before been at the Head of an Army, vanquishing by superiority of Skill, an experienced and successful General of France.

But is there not something that seems to shade the Lustre of this Day of public Rejoicing, and to abate it's Triumph? Do not some involuntary Sighs, some unbidden Groans escape from us, and strangely mix themselves with the Voice of Thanksgiving, and the Acclamations of Joy? And yet Heaven was pleased to grant us all this Success, with the Doss of much sewer of our brave Officers and Men than we could have rationally hoped.

He was not spared to wear the Laurels he had purchased ; to receive and enjoy the Plaudit of his Sovereign; the folemn Thanks of his Country; and the Acclamations of a whole Nation. He lived indeed, to fee the important Service he had undertaken, much dearer to him than Life, happily accomplished.--He lived to see the collected Force of the Enemy broken, and fleeing before him. ---He expired in the Arms of Conquest; and filled with Britain's Prosperity and Glory, he " fmiled in Death." of the Public.

He died to live in the Hearts of Britons, and especially in the Hearts of British Americans, who are so peculiarly interested in this Conquest.—He died to live in the Annals of his Country, distinguished with the brightest Beams of Glory. There his Character will adorn that Nation, his Services to which will never be forgotten. How we wish that he had been

MAY God perfect the Work of Mercy in which we are rejoicing, that the Words of Moses to Israel may still be more applicable to us: "There is none like unto the God of Jesturun, who ride hon the Heaven in thy Help, and in his Excellency on the Sky. He shall thruit out the Enemy from before thee. Israel then shall dwell in afety alone; The Fountain of Jacob shall be upon a Land of Cornand Wine.

May the Goodness of God lead us to an universal Repentance; and may He give us such a true Sense of our Obligations to him, as shall express itself in every Work of Purity and Righteousness, which the Gospel enjoins upon us! Let us beware that we do not turn the Kindness of Heaven into Wantonness, and indulge to that Impiety, Sensuality and Licentiousness, which too often attends external Security, and temporal Prosperity. —— It has been remarked, that the Supineness, Sensuality, and Dissoluteness of Manners that invaded Rome, after the Destruction of God forbid that Success should have any such unhappy Effect upon us, and betray us into such Vices, not only in Opposition to every temporal Motive, but also to all the Light and affecting Considerations, which Christianity affords! Only fear the Lord and serve him in Truth, with all your Heart, for consider what great Things he has done for you."

May God still bless the British Arms wherever they are employed! Still may He advance the Cause of Liberty, and pure Religion, till every Nation shall be happy under the Government of the Prince of Peace; and Truth and Righteousness shall universally prevail!
